“ I shed tears for you and your family today as I stood on the square in Carrollton and watched your procession go by. I felt the pain for your family and friends, and also much pride for your bravery. I love this country and support our troops. May God give strength to your family, and dry their tears.

“ We may have never met, but my gratitude overflows for young men and their families that sacrifice so that our country can have the freedoms (that most people take for granted) , have the freedom of religion, and are able to voice our opinions openly. No words can heal the pain and my heart breaks that I am not able to stand proudly among your peers and participate in that final salute, for which you richly deserve. Please be rest assured that at 11:00am on Sept.30, 2011, no matter where I am, life will come to a complete halt in your honor. May you rest in peace.

“ To all of Lance Clp Terry Wright's family & friends,we cannot feel your pain or know how it feel's to lose a child or sibling but we do know from personal expierence how a family is struck down from losing their child who was also a proud Marine Lance Clp Daniel McVicker from Alliance was KIA in Iraq in 2005 and his father and stepmom are dear friends of our's. We honored Danny's sacrifice by being there for the McVicker family and remembering Danny every day,and We will do our best to remember your brave son,brother,uncle,and friend for He along with Danny are now in God's loving embrace in Heaven guarding the pearly gates for all the others brave soldiers and Marines that due to the War in Iraq & Afghanistan sadly are entering heaven on a daily basis. May God be with all of you and May his loving embrace be with you all now and always. We honor Lance cpl Terry Wright and we bid him a final salute & thank him for paying the ultimate sacrifice to keep all of us free from Terror.
