“ I wish I had know when this was taking place. I have been taking my sister for radiation but, wanted to say a farewell to my friend of ssssoo many years. We were in school together and when I went to college at the age of 40, scared to death cause I was so old, who did I run into but my ole school friend, Sandy Shotwell.....she made me feel right at home there. She told me about going to Harlem Springs cemetery and walked by a stone that had my name on it....lol....how shocked she was cause she hadn't heard of me dying...lol....we got a good laugh out of that one. She was a good lady and good friend. It's sad how we let life take us in such different directions that we drift away from people we care so much about....Prayers and sympathy for all her family
