“ I am Tee’s wife I am not ashamed of the way the services went. Him and myself talked more about things then anyone knew. With our nights in the hospital or our long nights up all night because he couldn’t sleep because of him being in pain. If any of his kids were around other than the ones listed they would have been listed but why list kids that he has no involvement in. These were his wishes and Myself and his brothers the WarDogs made sure that these wishes were taken care of. If you are unhappy with these maybes you should be kicking yourself because he is an amazing father he even took my son Harley in as his own. So y’all should be ashamed of yourselves for not letting these children in his life. Now I will continue to morn my husband my best friend the daddy to my son and my further child. As I am carrying the last Gotschall child. RIP my love.

“ Tee was a wonderful individual, he was like a brother to my husband Jay "Sarge" and a great friend to many. I will miss the many times we all would go out or go on rides. I could be having a real bad day, and he could always make me smile. I will truly miss him, and his hugs. The shock I still feel is unbelievable, and it is so hard to believe it is true. He just came over the other day and I am so glad he did. I was able to get my last hug and tell him that I loved him. I pray for Christy and all of his children during this time. You all will stay in my thought and prayers <3

I followed my husband wishes. You don't bring the kids around him don't let him see them they might as well been dead to him and that was his words. And I'm not sorry for leaving them off or obeying his wishing of not letting any of the kids he didn't see in.
