“ It was a privilege and an honor to take care of this beautiful lady. I really enjoyed her stories. God gained an angel when he took her home.

Virginia was a gracious lady. She came to my house and helped me make my first quilt. I enjoyed talking with her. I knew Jean from highschool and David was in my class. I think the world of her grand-daughter, Amber as if she were my own grand-daughter.

I have known Virginia all my life. My mother and her went to school together and Mom would stop and they would gab and catch up on what was happening. I would get a cookie or two. We would run in town together sometimes. My great Aunt Annie and her were quilters and we would trade patches of different colors back and forth.
