“ I have a memory, Will and I Trish Bittner drove to Boston for a wrestling convention and had a great time in the streets of Boston. We either made Rosie on St. Patrick’s day or while we were in Boston. And on are way back we took a wrong turn on a mountain pass and couldn’t turn back. It was a snow storm where if you slid off either side of the mountain you were screwed. Will and I switched spots because I grew up in the snow belt. Only cars on the road other then us and a truck driver in front of us making me tracks, I mean it was bad. We had to shoot out the lights to see because his lights wouldn’t shut out while on. All the meanwhile carrying our good luck charm Rosie. I played city of angels soft and low the whole ride. While Will slept in the seat next to me. When we finally got back with Gods blessing the girl truck driver said, I was a good little driver. I love Will and his family. God bless you and Will is greatly missed.
